DISCLAIMER: I intend to include the data collected from this form in a (very scientific) paper for submission to the arXiv (<https://arxiv.org/>). The inclusion of this data will be entirely anonymous, so I promise your name will not appear anywhere in this paper unless you ask me very nicely—I am only collecting names to keep track of who has responded.

Again! But this time...

Imagine you are out in public and you vaguely overhear a conversation between two strangers:

Stranger A asks a question, but you can't make out what the question is.

Stranger B answers the question with a number.

Given the same options as presented previously, which response would you find the funniest? In other words, out of the provided options, which one would be the funniest answer to a question for which you have no context?

This time you need to pick the one funniest answer for all questions, no more of this top two nonsense.
